Warning Signs

What to Look Out For

Many times an individual who is planning on causing you a lot of harm will basically stalk you. They will test your awareness by removing certain items outside and working up their courage to break into the house.

They may kill your dog to keep them from alerting on them later or during the night. If your dog doesn't eat, they may have poisoned them or they may be feeding them to get them used to having them in the area.

If you notice that you are missing items or that your dog has disappeared, you may want to heighten your alertness or notify your neighbors and the local law enforcement of your concerns. You can even request a patrol car to drive by on occasion to act as a deterrent.

Be wary of vehicles that do not belong in the neighborhood. Especially if they show signs of someone waiting inside (windshield wipers on in the rain, running motor, windows cracked in the summer, cigarette butts on the ground around the driver's door) That is a sign of someone watching either you or another house. Many perpetrators watch their target for several days before striking.

If you live in a more rural area, be observant for abnormal tire tracks, foot prints, or any other signs that someone else has been on your land that does not belong.

Overall, simply be observant, if you notice something that doesn't look right. Never doubt your senses, if you feel like your being watched or you think you see something that is not right, do not ignore it.

Teamwork Tactics

When Your Not Alone

Teamwork Tactics

A 2-3 man team has two different methods. The first one is used with a flanking method. One person stays inside, while the other flanks the attacker from the outside (leaving the house through another door).

The second one is the supply/support. While the primary shooter is engaging the threat, the other party is loading weapons, jamming mags, and keeping the shooter supplied so that they can keep applying pressure onto the attackers. They are also the ones that keep the children out of harms way and communicate with law enforcement on the phone.

Community Tactics

Observation Stage

Observation Stage

---

This is a twofold set up where you have the overall observation stage and then action stage.

The observation stage is where you work with the community to keep an eye out for any kind of unusual behavior. Neighbors keep each other updated on times that they will be gone for an extended period and notify each other if something seems wrong.

This can include, but does not necessarily require a night patrol. An example is that I walk my dogs all through the neighborhood every night. Most times if I see something that concerns me, I contact the potential threat and ask them a few questions. This is a subtle way of letting the suspect know that I am on to them. This tends to ward off most aggressors because they realize that they are being watched and will not have any easy time of getting away with whatever crime they are planning. I will also contact my neighbors and let them know of my concerns if I feel the need.

Community Tactics

Action Stage

---

The action phase – when something does happen, the neighbors can arm themselves and come to your rescue. An example of that is the Texas Church shooting where the neighbor across the road grabbed his rifle and shot the assailant thus stopping the attacker's reign of terror.

Be especially wary of the action phase. It is important to know how to help your neighbor in such a way that you don't get shot by them on accident. Knowing infantry tactics is the best way to know how to handle a situation like that. Rehearsing with your community will work out a lot of problems and kinks so that there are no accidents should they come to your aid.

There is a whole other world of training needed to fully utilize working together as a community. Before you delve too deeply I highly suggest you take an infantry tactics course. The infantry course is an in depth class that teaches you how to work as a team using methods such as Bound and Over Watch and Flanking Maneuvers. It helps you ensure a victorious outcome with minimal casualties on your side.

Social Collapse

Mass Chaos

Social Collapse

Knowing your neighbors can help you immensely in the time of desperate need. Knowing each other's strengths and weaknesses will help you work together as a community and as a large force to not just help protect each other and property but to be able to assist others that are in a worse condition than you are.

Think of Houston, Texas vs. New Orleans, Louisiana.

Houston Disaster

Working Together

Houston, Texas was hit with a catastrophic hurricane in 2017. Severe flooding, no electricity. Mass casualties. Since the community was working together and they were able to help each other, martial law was never declared because there was no need.

Communities worked together. They took care of each other, they shared food and water. Many brought out their boats to rescue those that were stranded in heavily flooded areas. The neighboring militia worked with the sheriffs and state officials to maintain law and order.

The locals helped the national guard by sharing food, generators and other important resources. There was even a 5ton truck that was pulled out by a local's Tahoe.

They were able to ward off crimes, looting and other issues because they worked together to guard each other day and night.

They didn't stop there – after the immediate danger was over and the waters receded, they came together to rebuild their communities and as a result, they were able to return back to normal much faster.

New Orleans

Every Man for Himself

The hurricane Katrina became famous because of the aftermath that ensued. Martial Law was declared immediately. The people trying to conduct rescue efforts were typically shot at by resident gang members. Helicopters were also shot at.

Crime rate went through the roof (rapes, murders, thievery). There were daily news videos of people breaking into stores and stealing everything to include televisions.

Guardsman and other organizations, such as FEMA, that went in to assist were constantly attacked and had to have armed guards on their equipment and their camps at all times.

It took years for New Orleans to finally get back to some sense of normalcy.

Houston and New Orleans are both major cities, yet look at the difference. When a community works together, the people thrive. When they do not, chaos reigns.

The Strongest Man

Standing Alone

The Strongest Man

You could be the strongest, most skilled man in the world and it would all amount to absolutely nothing if you are working alone against a community. There is safety in numbers.

You can see that time and time again through several battles. There were two delta operatives in the battle of Mogadishu in Haiti. They even made a movie off of it (Black Hawk Down). They were inevitably killed because they were alone against an entire city trying to protect a pilot. It didn't take long for them to run out of ammunition and get overrun.

There was another man in WWII that held off an entire battalion of Japanese while his platoon retreated. It also ended in his death.

The point is, no matter how good you are, you cannot take on the world by yourself – you will lose.

Homework

Teamwork

Homework

- ▶ Test yourself – teach your spouse or a friend what you have learned (No cheating – the knowledge you share has to come straight from your head in your own words, the information in this course is for paid members only)
- ▶ If you can't teach it off the top of your head, then you don't know it. Retake the classes as many times as you need to get it right
- ▶ Safety in numbers – if possible, incorporate your spouse or a friend in your home defense plan
- ▶ Get to know your neighbors – start out with establishing trust and friendship then see if they would be interested in working together to keep the area safe
- ▶ Join the neighborhood watch if you have one
- ▶ Get involved in the community – find something you can do in the community that you are interested in. That is the best way to get to know those around you and to establish a network

Networking

Helping Each Other

Networking is a huge part of your overall home defense strategy.

You will need to have backup at some point. Having neighbors that are working together can prevent an attack from even occurring in your neighborhood. Or at the very least, stop the attack before it gets too severe.

Knowing what each of your neighbors are capable of, can tell you what type of assets you have (i.e. farmer, doctor, etc)

Having this information and knowing how to use it in your home defense/community could be the difference between life and death for your or someone else.

Important Notes

Don't Forget

Important Notes

---

1. Safety in Numbers – Never work alone when you can work as a team
2. Don't be afraid to speak out and share your knowledge – get as many people involved in working together as possible
3. Routine training and practice will help you eliminate any flaws and make you more effective when the need is there.
